David Havel graduated from the Secondary School of Applied Cybernetics, majoring in graphic design, then studied traditional puppet animation at the UTB and VOŠF. After his studies he worked at the PPP post-production studio. He was involved in, for example, the internationally acclaimed documentary film about Jan Saudek. Furthermore, he worked as an editor for movie trailers, as in "Malé oslavy" or "Okno ve zdi". In addition to full-length animated projects, David created countless music videos, television commercials, independent short animated films. His cross media projects include the creation of graphic and audio-visual image of the TV station PUBLIC TV. The project Hurvínek in 3D was his first contact with making of a feature film, where he first worked as an artist, and later on as a visual and technical director. In co-production with The Spejbl and Hurvínek Theater he made a recording of a live theater performance in 3D stereoscopic format – the film was distributed in the Czech Republic and the Slovak Republic. He joined the Miracle Film production company in 2012. He worked on production of the stop-motion animated feature Little Fish from the Fish Shop.
